

Directions to the Publick House

On the Common, 277 Main Street, Route 131, Sturbridge, MA 01566

At the crossroads of New England, the Publick House Historic Inn is one-quarter mile from the junction of the Boston – New York and Springfield – Providence highways with entrances close to each route. It is also conveniently situated one mile from Exit 78 on the Massachusetts Turnpike.

Within each reach of these main arteries, the Publick House is far enough off the beaten path so that its quiet beauty and charm is not affected. Travelers say that it is the “only” place to stop between New York and Boston. Centrally located for New England travelers, it is near several metropolitan areas and well-situated for stopovers on long journeys.

From Boston or Western Massachusetts (Springfield) via the Massachusetts Turnpike (I-90)
